Tenth International Conference on Applied Informatics

21-23 May 2026, Sibiu, Romania

<http://conferences.ulbsibiu.ro/icdd>

The conference primarily targets young researchers from around the globe, offering a platform to present and discuss their work in informatics and related disciplines, such as computational algebra, numerical calculus, and bioinformatics. Participants are invited to submit original research papers that are supported by practical software applications demonstrating the findings. The conference does not accept purely theoretical studies. All submissions will undergo a rigorous single-blind peer review process, evaluated by at least two independent experts in the field. Papers will be assessed based on their relevance to the conference themes, clarity of presentation, originality, and the validity of the results and proposed solutions. The program will feature regular presentations (15 minutes each) and brief presentations from IT companies. The official language of the conference is English.

Topics (Topics of interest include, but are not limited to)

Algorithms and data structures
Graph theory and applications
Formal languages and compilers
